What I Learned

I learned the practicality of creating a plan, which was causing a huge gap in my previous work. Project planning is very important.

I very much enjoyed creating content for the site. I usually focus on functionality or structure, but coming up with design and content was a relatively new experience. To supplement this project, I would have added requirements for using git as a way to learn how to commit/collaborate. Possibly working with a teammate would work as well. Overall, there is very little I would think of changing.
